I'm a computer engineer. I started my professional life as a software developer while I was still a student. I have been interested in developing software in various disciplines especially web and desktop, since childhood. I always use Linux distros at my home and my work since 2019 and I'm always in touch with developer tools.

I care about UI design of my projects as much as code every time. I value originality in my work however, I am also capable of writing clean and comprehensible code for group works. I find it important to have a deep understanding of the programming languages, codes, tools and functions that I use. I am continually engaged in improving my skills and learning new skills in every work I do.
